

This topographic map illustrates the Rocca di Mezzo area, highlighting a specific route marked by five numbered points (1-5) in blue. The route begins near the town of Rocca di Mezzo, passes through a series of valleys and ridges, and ends near the town of Rovere. Key geographical features include the Monti della Sirentina, the Rio Comenente, and the Rio di Pezza. The map also shows various towns and villages, including Rocca di Mezzo, Rovere, and Brecciaro. A scale bar at the bottom right indicates distances up to 1500 meters.

The graph illustrates the altitude profile of a flight over a 5 km distance. The altitude starts at 1500 m, remains relatively constant until approximately 0.5 km, then begins to rise. It reaches a sharp increase at 1.5 km, jumping from 1800 m to 1980 m. The altitude continues to rise slightly, peaking at 2000 m around 2.5 km. After the peak, the altitude decreases steadily, returning to 1500 m at the 5 km mark.
